Dear Harold:

Sorry to take such a long time to get back to you — but I've been very busy with the news service and have been fighting off a terribly vicious cold (and I mean vicious).

In any case, I've enclosed a few odds and ends about the assassinations — including a copy of the article written by Doctor Wecht for Forensic Science magazine last April.

Also enclosed are: a copy of a story from last week's London Sunday Times on Ruby, plus a number of stories from recent ZNS's on the assassinations.

One ZNS story is an interview I did with a former F.B.I. agent in Constable, New York named Arthur Murtagh. The guy really sounds legit, that he knows where the weaknesses in the investigations were, and that someone like you might be able to get useful information out of him. (I got his name from Ray's attorney, Livingston. Apparently Murtagh dropped Livingston a letter — saying that he, too, believes Ray is possibly innocent of pulling the trigger).

I hope this stuff can help you. In the meantime, I've run out of books to read here on the West Coast. I've reached a temporary dead end.

I'll keep an eye out for clippings and send them to you from time to time.

Sincerely,

Jon Newhall
